Dr. Erica Miller to Present “Don’t Tell Me I Can’t Do It” at One Woman Event in Austin

Austin, Texas. February 14, 2019. Dr. Erica Miller, Holocaust survivor, mental health professional, entrepreneur, international best-selling author and recognized inspirational speaker, will be featured at the “One Woman Fearless Women’s Summit” event in Austin on Monday evening, February 25th. The event will be held at the Austin Film Society, located at 6406 N Interstate 35 Frontage Rd #3100 from 6:00-9:30pm. Tickets are available online through One Woman or at the door.

Dr. Miller’s presentation “Don’t Tell Me I Can’t Do It,” is based on the same title of her 2015 book about living audaciously in the here and now. During her talk, Dr. Miller will share her unique philosophy that inspires people to live more empowered lives. By communicating the beliefs that have successfully guided her on her journey, Dr. Miller shows audiences how to navigate life’s challenges, free themselves from negative messages, evaluate their own journey’s path, face adversity with courage and determination, and capitalize on opportunities as they seek to realize their full potential. “Not since my family’s escape from a Nazi camp have I stood aside while someone else dictated the outcome of my future. We all have a voice and a choice,” Dr. Miller says.

Sharla Brown, Executive Director of One Woman events, says, “We are looking forward to Dr. Miller’s presentation. At One Woman, we believe that when we use the gifts, skills and talents we have been given to serve the world that we will make a massive difference! Just as ripples spread out when a single pebble is dropped into water, the actions of each of us can have far-reaching effects.”
